GRI works globally with the active participation of business, human rights, environmental, labor, and governmental organizations and other stakeholders. The new standards for reporting under GRI are mandatory as of July 1, 2018. In addition to the general set of indicators, there are so-called Sectoral Guidelines, which are tailored to specific sectors, such as transport and logistics Differentiating from other sustainability standards Some German SMEs use the German Sustainability Code as a basic standard. This is based on the GRI, but is less comprehensive. The GHG Protocol is a transnational standard of the World Resources Institute and the World Business Council for Sustainable Development for accounting for greenhouse gas emissions. The basis of reporting according to GRI is transparency, its goal is standardization and comparability. CSM LAA/Neuburg (PDF file; 2.59A MB) P.
